Defense-wide Information Assurance Program (DIAP)

Vision: Information Superiority for the DoD, achieved through a balanced integration of highly skilled personnel, operational policy and capability, and leading edge technology.

Goal: Ensure DoD's vital information resources are secure and protected

Mission: To ensure the DoD's vital information resources are secured and protected by unifying/integrating IA activities to achieve information superiority and by applying a Defense in Depth strategy which integrates the capabilities of people, operations and technology to establish a multi-layer, multi-

DIAP
Acquisition Team

Role: Advance the integration of IA in Acquisition Programs

- Develop IA policy and guidance for acquisition (in concert with USD(AT&L))
- Conduct DoD CIO reviews of IA Strategies (per CCA)
- Participate in IIPT/OIPT and security WIPTs
- Coordinate on TEMPs and Acquisition Strategies
- Review program IA implementation progress
- Review and comment on Certification and Accreditation documentation (DITSCAP SSAA)
- Conduct outreach to acquisition programs
- Act as focal point for acquisition related IA matters

IA in Acquisition
The Challenge

- The Good: Program A (ACAT-IAM)
  - Early IA involvement; IA included in WIPT tasking
  - Comprehensive IA Strategy
  - DITSCAP C&A in progress; C&A activities integrated in TEMP
- The Bad: Program B (ACAT-ID)
  - Transitioned from Advanced Concept Technology Demonstration (ACTD)
  - Mission Essential system in IT registry (CCA applicable)
  - First sought CCA certification 3 days prior to MS B DAB review
  - PPP only; no IA Strategy
- The Ugly: Program C (ACAT-IAM)
  - Key program - extends info services from strategic to tactical environment
  - Fielded and in operation
  - No IA Strategy; DITSCAP C&A not completed

Current Initiatives

- Draft DoD Instruction 8580.xx “Information Assurance in the Acquisition System”
- Draft “Defense Acquisition Guidebook” IA section
  - Answers “How much IA for my program?”
  - IA Strategy Template
- DAU “IA for the PM” Learning Module – in development
- Community of Practice
  - Involve practitioners from all levels: PMO, PEO, MAJCOM/SYSCOM, Component CIO, OSD
- Expanded outreach efforts
